

* Which region are you from? Please select first you country, then you region.

Regions are regarded as the new powerhouses for innovation and adoption of personalised medicine. They will drive the transition towards sustainable healthcare and personalised health.

The Assembly of European Regions (AER) defines region as a territorial authority existing at the level immediately below that of the central government, with its own political representation in the form of an elected regional assembly.

Often these regions better reflect culture, identity and a sense of common interests. Regions are, therefore, well placed to bring personalised medicine and healthcare closer to the citizen.

The Province of Limburg has developed a mission driven policy for the regionale development of economy and innovation. Limburg healthy is one of the missions defined. LIOF carries out parts of the strategy in a program called MEDLIM and in a program called Limburg FutureProof.

Limburg has a policy around science in the Einstein Telescope Mission.
